

Masked Quartet Hijacks Stieffel Beverage Cargo

Tax Body Aids Sheriff's Probe

Approximately $2,200 in cash in addition to the $2,700 whiskey shipment was stolen in the Dec. 23 hi-jacking of a Stieffel Bros. panel truck near Kiln. It was disclosed today by Bert Stieffel, one of the proprietors of the company.

Stieffel said the money had not been noticed missing because it was thought to be in another truck. He said a salesman had been out with the truck delivering a n d making collections and after bringing the truck with the money in the glove compartment into the warehouse he left the building for a short while.

Meantime, Stieffel told one of the employees to load a truck with the $2,700 shipment and the employee mistakenly loaded and left with the vehicle containing the money. Exact amount of the loss cannot be determined until all duplicate receipts are checked, he said.

The State Tax Collector's Office and a private investigator have entered into the probe of the hi-jacking, Sheriff Gerald V. Price Jr. announced.

"This is one case we are going to crack," a spokesman said. Stieffel commented that the robbery was conducted in an Al Capone manner adding that his company had been in business 16 years and had never experienced any trouble.

The shipment of liquor was taken from a truck owned by Stieffel Bros., wholesale liquor dealers in Waveland. Stieffel said the truck was halted on state highway 603 near Kiln by four armed, masked men riding in late model cars, one having a siren and hand-operated red light.

Stieffel's uncle, A. J. Stieffel, 55, was driving the truck accompanied by Donald Dorn, 28, a company employee. The men were tied, pillow cases pulled over their heads and they were left by the roadside during freezing weather.

Searchers found the light panel truck the same day about two miles east of Sellers. The liquor had been removed.

An investigator from the tax commission said the hijacking represented a loss of between $300 and $400 in black market taxes to the state.

William F. Winter, head of the Tax Collector's office, said he was offering 100 per cent cooperation in breaking the case and was willing to put his entire staff to work to hunt down the hi-jacker.

Public Building Headlines Accomplishments of 1960

This old year, 1960, now spurring and about to burn out, has been a period of many accomplishments and events for Hancock County.

The past 12 months have been particularly studded with the completion of new public buildings.

Dumbar Avenue offers the greatest visual evidence of the year's accomplishments with the four new buildings opened there. The new Hancock County Health Center, opened April 25, was constructed at a cost of $21,490 and the Hancock General Hospital was opened May 28 with construction costing $467,500. In the fall the new North Bay Elementary School was opened. The school, including two smaller projects not on Dumbar, cost $201,000.

Another building completed this year was Our Lady of the Gulf Elementary School on Second Street. The dedication was held Nov. 27 although the school actually began operations for fall semester.

R. G. Hubbard, Jr., president of the Hancock County Board of Supervisors, cited the health center and the hospital as the two major countywide accomplishments for 1960. He also noted the initial construction of the six and one half mile Lakeshore state aid road in Beat 5 as a major item along with the completion of the four mile $117,000 state aid road in Beat 1.

Hubbard also listed the two bridges built in Beat 2 at a cost of $75,000 and securing easements for the proposed Kiln-Bay St. Louis highway as notable signs of progress in 1960.

Mayor John A. Scaffide pointed with pride to the fact that Bay St. Louis' bonded indebtedness is at its lowest point ever and the municipality is proceeding rapidly with the street improvement program as the year grinds to the close.

The mayor reported the indebtedness to be $57,000 exclusive of school bonds.

He listed another noteworthy accomplishment as the notification by the Mississippi Agricultural and Industrial Board it had submitted an application for federal planning funds on behalf of the city. The funds would provide professional planning assistance for comprehensive planning codes for the city.

County Superintendent of Education K. G. McCarty also cited various important accomplishments of the board of education in 1960. He listed the raising of teacher and bus driver salaries, the purchase of two 66-passenger buses and three private buses and the work done to put the school buses in a good mechanical condition.

County Superintendent of Education K. G. McCarty also cited various important accomplishments of the board of education in 1960. He listed the raising of teacher and bus driver salaries, the purchase of two 66-passenger buses and three private buses and the work done to put the school buses in a good mechanical condition.

Equipment will be moved in early next week for the removal of pilings along the beach. R. G. Hubbard Jr., president of the Hancock County board of supervisors, said yesterday.

He reported that H. E. Wilson of Gulfport, to whom the contract for the pilings removal was awarded, told him by telephone Tuesday that work will begin next week.

cal condition. McCarty said the inauguration of a program to have each bus checked by a shop mechanic every 30 days also is noteworthy along with the opening of a county owned bus shop. He noted that the county now has three spare buses in case the others break down.

The employing of a part-time band director for North Central School also was cited by McCarty along with the repairing of the roof on North Central. He said the repairs were necessitated by faulty original workmanship.

Mayor Garfield Ladner of Waveland cited as outstanding accomplishments the announcements that a bank and a new postoffice are to be built in Waveland. Negotiations were completed at this end in 1960.

He also noted that the completion of the pilings removal financing drive for cleaning up the beach has been a major accomplishment. Although the drive and cleanup project involves the

Kessler Man To Face Jury In 2 Breakins

An airman AWOL from Kessler Field has been bound to the grand jury on charges of breaking and entering a Waveland home and a Bay St. Louis drive-in restaurant.

He is Donald Woodley, 21. He was arrested by city Patrolman Latham Garriga Monday evening outside Frostop drive-in as he was changing clothes from a white outfit, worn apparently to look like an employee of Frostop, into regular street clothes.

Loft, taken from the Frostop and the home of A. W. Stahl in Waveland Christmas Day, was discovered by Garriga under the bridge behind the drive-in. The items included two suits, ice bucket, electric grill and various tools taken from the Waveland home and two cartons of cigarettes taken from Frostop. According to Deputy Sheriff Gerald V. Price, Jr., Woodley also allegedly took $35 in cash from Frostop.

Woodley appeared before Justice of the Peace Nellus Rhodes Tuesday night and was held over to the grand jury on the two charges. He is being held on a $5,000 bond on one charge and $2,500 on the other charge. Price said the Air Force also has put a hold on Woodley on the AWOL charge.

Cite Coastal Needs For Tourist Trade

The need for a unified effort along the entire Gulf Coast to attract tourists to boost the area's economy and the specific need for a convention hall to help in the effort was told to the Bay Rotary Club yesterday.

Chuck Olney, president of the Mississippi Gulf Coast Motor Court Assn., said increasing tourist traffic along the coast will bring in new, fresh out of state dollars that will benefit the entire coast without spending any of the natural resources.

He noted that there are already 4,300 units on the coast representing an investment of $17,000,000 and that eight coast motel operations have added or are in the process of adding 230 units at a cost of the new units of $1,960,000.

Emphasizing the benefit to the entire coast he pointed out that the $1,960,000 is being directed into coast payrolls, building and equipment suppliers, utilities, financial services, and other services and that the pay envelopes of these employees will go into local cash registers. He said the new units will create new permanent jobs and increase payrolls of companies servicing the units.

The speaker said few people realize the economic benefit the motel business gives the community. He explained that 185 days a year occupancy for each unit for an average of two people who will spend $20 a day gives the coast an additional $851,000 in revenue.

Of the average of $10 a day spent by each tourist on the Gulf Coast Olney said it has been estimated that $1.40 goes to local retail merchants, $2.70 for food and refreshments, $2.10 for lodging, $2.20 for gasoline and oil, 40 cents for various tourist attractions, 70 cents for entertainment and recreation and 50 cents for laundry and other services.

With these figures in mind the speaker told the Rotarians it is important that a unified effort be made by all people along the coast, not just Biloxi, or Gulfport, or Bay St. Louis or any one city or county.

He said brochures are needed to help advertise the area, a television station is needed to help in the cause and that the big need is for a convention hall so that the area can increase the number

(This poem was composed by Mrs. Alma J. Mitchell, Negro, while a patient recently at Hancock General Hospital.)

There is something about a hospital,
That makes many folks get together,
On summer days, or winter days,
And in any kind of weather.
You meet the doctors, the nurses too,
And the other folks who work there,
A lot of questions you want to ask,
But say to yourself, "I don't dare!"
They take you in, because you are sick,
And you really want to get well,
One moment you feel so very low,
Yet, you want to say, "I feel swell!"

If need be, you will be put to bed,
They will take good care of you,
And so you put your trust in them,
But hold on to God's hand!
The Auxiliary Ladies' Lordly each one,
At your bed they give a smile,
Mail your letters for you and speak kind words,
Their visits are truly worthwhile.
Lord teach our doctors and nurses,
And all hospital workers to give them tender hearts,
Give them tender hearts to Lord,
Please show them what to do.
Then when darkness comes, shut us in,
Thy curtain of night is let down,
Lord bless all hospitals everywhere,
Keep thy children safe and sound.

New Year's Idea

The new year begins next week and many will be inclined to say "so what". After all Christmas, just past, most of us celebrate in commemoration of the birth of Jesus Christ, while Good Friday is a time of remorse for the ignorance of the human race and the crucifixion of Christ and Easter, itself, is a time for rejoicing because of Christ's resurrection.

What does New Year's mean? It has no religious or devotional aspect. It was not made a holiday just so juvenile adults could party too late and drink too much. It wasn't even just so each of us could wish a friend, neighbor or acquaintance good luck in the coming year.

The coming of the NEW year, we believe, represents a very big thing to humanity. It represents a new start, with the slate almost clean. Whether we make sincere and meaningful New Year's resolutions or frivolous and meaningless ones (this editor dares not make either kind), the first day of January, tax wise and otherwise, symbolizes a chance for all of us to start anew and leaves to us the effort to make the new start much better than our prior ones.

The Echo wishes all, even Castro, a fine start in 1961.

How Many 'L's

On this page we are reprinting an editorial from the Pascagoula Chronicle-Star of a few weeks back. We think that in many ways it is one of the best editorials we've read in some time, so, though we have one complaint, we are reprinting it.

Consistently it seems this editor misspells the word "merchandise" by using two "l's". Mr. L. H. Harkley, or whom ever wrote the Chronicle-Star editorial, reversed our error. Llama is spelt with two "l's".

Still a mighty good editorial.

What with the robbery of a truck load of spirituous liquor in Hancock County last week, the numerous arrests and convictions in JP court in Harrison County of individuals who had holiday spirits in their car plus at least one such conviction in Hancock County, the booze question has raised its head even higher in our area.

Glut in the Andes lama market

In a column titled "Questionable Editorial Ethics," editor Curtis Mullen of the Madison County Herald at Canton deplors use of canned editorials by newspapers.

"Canned" matter is copy received from outside sources, as opposed to "live" matter, which is home grown among the paper's own staff.

"From the high-courting US Proco Association," writes Mullen, "came a generous offer to relieve us of one of our chores."

"The Association offered to take over our editorial page and make it outstanding in its contents and a sure source of interest to all our readers."

"The only request," says Mullen, "was that the matter be run as straight editorials with no by-line."

This "only request", of course, was in order to lead the public to believe the opinions expressed in the ready-made copy were those of Mullen — the hometown editor whom almost every reader knows.

We have not yet received such an all-encompassing offer as that made to Mullen. But we receive weekly more than a few pounds of canned matter tagged by their senders "suggested editorials, no credit need be given."

The weekly editor who embraces easy pickings such as these ends up fronting willy-nilly for interests of which he's never heard and espousing causes — from the political right or left or wherever — he wouldn't be caught dead defending.

The proffered editorials are splendid examples of restraint, are never argumentative and are convincing because they sound so darn knowledgeable about so many complicated matters. The point of view being sold hardly ever appears right out in the open — the message is given the reader through a sort of journalistic subliminal hocus pocus.

You can tell when your local paper starts using this stuff. Your editor all of a sudden will unveil an astonishing erudition and will begin penning editorials mentioning the glut in the Andes lama market, the economic shortsightedness of the new regime in Poland, and, most prevalent clue, will often include the words, "... as the Wall Street Journal said the other day..."

These pieces of canned propaganda, offered as the original thoughts of your little ole friendly editor, fool a lot of people, including even professors of journalism.

Witness an award voted by judges who are professors of journalism at the Mississippi Press Association convention in Biloxi early this month.

The award — a prize for the best editorial page among newspapers of such-and-so size — went to a paper that, although we have studied it weekly for about eight months, has resisted all our efforts to detect on its editorial page an original editorial.

Everything on that prize-winning page — except one rather well-done personal column — is canned. And none of it is labeled as such. All is tacitly offered as the humble opinions of yours truly, the editor.

This is as dishonest as almost anything the teevee bums did and which drew down about their heads the condemnation of the nation's press.

QUALITY DAIRY ROUGHAGE

The quality of your stored roughage is just as important as the quantity. Cows are likely to eat only half as much poor quality roughage as they will good quality. You will have to make up the difference with high priced grain.

There is no percentage in bringing poor quality hay and mixing it with molasses to make the cows eat it. It does no good and costs money. You will be much better off by putting the extra cost into better quality hay.

Place fertilizer deep — two to three inches below seed drill and run to three inches to the side. This will help prevent fertilizer injury to the young seedlings.

Plant early — as soon as the ground is over 50 degrees F. Experimentation shows early planting gives better yields.

enough to prevent freezing and wrap risers with heating cable. In your layinghouses, put heating cables in the water troughs and in emergencies, use heat lamps.

COIN NOTES

Drought hurt the Mississippi corn crop last summer. You can do a few things to lessen the risk next year.

Select good deep land. Prepare a good seedbed. Break the land deep. Plant break at least every other year.

Place fertilizer deep — two to three inches below seed drill and run to three inches to the side. This will help prevent fertilizer injury to the young seedlings.

Plant early — as soon as the ground is over 50 degrees F. Experimentation shows early planting gives better yields.

15 YEARS AGO

Dec. 28, 1945—The latest Bay St. Louis man to reenlist in the regular Army is John L. Favre, according to the Army recruiting office in Gulfport. He has over three years service in the Army, two of which were spent overseas in the European theater. He wears the American theater Ribbon, Good Conduct Medal, World War II Victory medal and European theater ribbon with four battle stars.

25 YEARS AGO

Dec. 27, 1935—All over the country in the past few days saw signs. A 15 to 20 inch spack will give you good yields even in a dry year and if plenty of moisture is available such stalks can be used for silage.

MRS. JUSTIN PAUL LEVASSEUR

LeVasseur-Arceneaux Vows Said at Lafayette

Red poinsettias and greenery adorned the altar of St. Genevieve's Catholic Church in Lafayette, La., Monday for the wedding of Miss Joan Dean Arceneaux, daughter of Mrs. Edgar Arceneaux and the late Mr. Arceneaux, of Lafayette, and Justin Paul LeVasseur, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Paul LeVasseur of Waveland.

For the ceremony at 10 a.m. the family pews were marked with silk roping.

The Rev. Lawrence LeVasseur, a cousin of the groom and the Superior of Notre Dame University Seminary in South Bend, Ind., officiated at the nuptial mass.

The bride, escorted to the altar by her brother, Harry Arceneaux, wore a formal gown of white Chantilly lace and slipper satin. The fitted lace bodice had a rounded neckline trimmed with the flower motif of the lace and long sleeves which ended in pearl points at the wrists. A wide panel of lace formed the front of her skirt and two wide satin panels were on either side extending into a chapel train. A coronet of seed pearls held her fingertip veil of tulle and she carried a single white Callieya orchid on her bride's missal.

Attending the bride as maid of honor was her former roommate, Miss Roselyn Zimmerman of Franklin, La. Bridesmaid was Miss Marie Lynn Canque of Lafayette.

They wore emerald green short frocks of peau de sole with scooped necklines and bell-shaped skirts. The skirts were sprinkled with roses of the same material. Covering their heads were hats fashioned in poinsettia chapeaux and trimmed with nose rills. Their shoes matched their gowns and they carried bouquets of red poinsettias.

A brother of the groom, Dr. Donald LeVasseur of Breau Bridge, La., was the best man. Groomsman and ushers were Herman Fontenelle of New Orleans, Forest Arceneaux and Stinson Simon, both of Lafayette.

Receiving during the reception at the Knights of Columbus Hall, Mrs. Arceneaux chose a sheath of brown silk threaded with gold. Her hat was of various shades of brown and beige as were her other accessories. At one shoulder she wore a yellow Cymbidium orchid. The mother of the groom selected a moss green crepe model accented with matching satin. Her hat was of pink flowers and she wore a corsage of pink rosebuds.

The bride's table was covered with white lace and centered with a large white wedding cake. Serving were Mesdames Edward Simon, Ed Arceneaux, Robert Burgess, Anthony Arceneaux and Clifton Guidry. Miss Earline Bernard was in charge of the bride's register.

For their wedding trip to the Gulf Coast, the bride wore a camel toned suit trimmed with a pink collar, a gold felt hat, brown accessories and the orchid from her wedding.

Upon their return, the young couple will be at home at 990 Jefferson Highway in New Orleans.

The bride was graduated from Lafayette High School where she was a member of Les Amis sorority and the Charity Hospital School of Nursing in New Orleans.

Mr. LeVasseur attended high school in Ocean Springs, received his bachelor of science degree from Louisiana State University and presently is a senior in the LSU School of Medicine. His medical fraternity is Phi Chi.

County Fair Development
One couldn't say it was a quiet Christmas in the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Dargatzis but it certainly was a merry and happy one as their three daughters plus husbands and 13 grandchildren were Yule guests.
The speaker said that with the Civil War Centennial celebration which starts next year the coast has a particular attraction. He said that during the celebration by attracting many tourists the South "can cash in on a bad mistake made years ago that cost us millions of dollars." And, he added, "we can do this by attracting Yankees who will spend their money here to see our coast."
W. Ray Gordon, a Notarian and president of the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce, commented that while the entire Gulf Coast is a wonderful area for tourists to pass through, Hancock County offers the best place for these tourists to settle. He added this is the best place in the United States, offering those retiring an others an "unspoiled" area on the beautiful coast.
Mr. and Mrs. Lee Hayden came from Norman, Okla., with their five youngsters, Holly, Penny, Lee, J., Margaret, Ann and Don. Holly also celebrated her birthday Christmas Eve.
From Morgan City, La., were Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Shannon.
Mr. and Mrs. J. T. McCaleb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. McCaleb; paternal grandmother is Mrs. A. G. Favre, all of Bay St. Louis. Jeffrey Christian was baptized Feb. 1 in Idar Oberstein Hospital by the Rev. Peter D. Van Dyke, Chaplain, first battle group.

Adoption Told
The adoption of a son, Jeffrey Christian, who celebrated his first birthday Nov. 30, was announced this week by STS and Mrs. Jeffrey J. Favre who are currently in Germany with the U. S. Army.
Mrs. Favre is the former Cecile McCaleb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. McCaleb; paternal grandmother is Mrs. A. G. Favre, all of Bay St. Louis. Jeffrey Christian was baptized Feb. 1 in Idar Oberstein Hospital by the Rev. Peter D. Van Dyke, Chaplain, first battle group.

Holiday Dinner
Mr. and Mrs. W. W. James, Jr., of Bradenton, Fla., who are the guests of his parents in their home on Ballentine St., entertained Tuesday evening at a buffet supper complementing former classmates of Mr. James.
Yuletide decorations were used in the living room and dining room where supper was served on a table covered with an ivory lace cloth. A green bowl filled with red camellias centered the table, while hand-painted heirloom dishes completed the appointments.
The Rev. Peter D. Van Dyke, Chaplain, first battle group.
